Hello to all my friends!

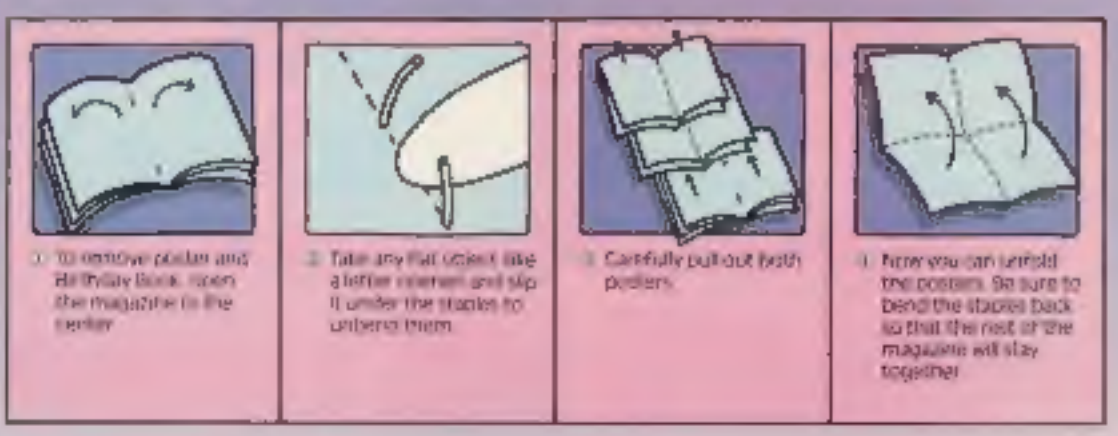
Here's our spectacular Spring issue of SHE-RA PRINCESS OF POWER MAGAZINE. It's filled with enchantment and adventure from Etheria for you to enjoy.

You'll find two wonderful posters inside. One features Swift Wind and his sleek four-legged friends, Crystal Sun Dancer and Crystal Moonbeam. The other poster is an exclusive present to our readers. When you put it together, it becomes your own beautiful Birthday Book. It's the perfect way to remember your family and friends on their special days.

Also in this issue, you can be a fashion designer and create a glamorous costume for your favorite Princess of Power. Plus, we've included a lot of fantastic Spring fun in our terrific pages that are "Just For You!"

I love to hear from my friends, so send me your letters and artwork and tell me what you'd like to see in our next issue in June. That's when we'll be back with more . . . for the honor of Grayskull!

She-Ra



1. To remove poster and Birthday Book, open the magazine to the center.
2. Take any flat object like a letter opener and slip it under the staples to unbend them.
3. Carefully pull out both posters.
4. Now you can unfold the posters. Be sure to bend the staples back so that the rest of the magazine will stay together.

The Best of

Terrific Tempestt

Tempestt Bledsoe is the super actress who plays Vanessa Huxtable on NBC's hit comedy series, "The Cosby Show." Like her character Vanessa, Tempestt is smart, outgoing, and clever. And though Vanessa is called "the snitch" by her TV family, off-camera Tempestt and her co-stars are very good friends.

"The Cosby Show" is Tempestt's TV series debut. Her career started as a professional model when she was five years old. Tempestt also has a beautiful voice and sings jingles in many TV commercials.

Tempestt is 12, and she has big plans for her future, both as an actress and as a student. "By the time I'm grown up," Tempestt says, "I want to have a degree in medicine, and I want to have written at least one book of poetry." Since she's so dedicated to working hard, there's no doubt Tempestt will succeed.

The Pool of Beauty

By P.E. King

One fresh spring day Catra and her female friend Clawdeen strolled through the forests of Woodsedge. They were surrounded by beauty. Up in the sky a flock of Minasra birds did their graceful dance. The floating Fawnushu, a shy and gentle beast, soared by leaving a trail of golden glitter. Laughing all the way, Catra and Clawdeen rolled down a cascade of purple blossoms that lay like a blanket across the entire mountain. Finally, they came upon a calm, cool pool of water. Catra looked into the water and saw her own reflection.

"Why, I am more beautiful than any of those other sights!" she exclaimed to Clawdeen.

Suddenly a light and airy voice began to speak from deep within the pool. "Many sights this pool has seen, from rainy nights to sunshine's sheen. But I must say in honesty your face is prettiest to me."

Catra laughed gaily at this. "Purr-haps I am the most beautiful one in all of Etheria."

The pool responded. "In the Sizzling Desert, there rests a precious pool, and though the sand and sun are hot, this clear blue lake is cool. The last remaining water from a once tremendous sea, the eye inside this pool is the judge of all beauty."

"Then we must find this pool at once and confirm my beauty," Catra purred. "Clawdeen, let us ride to the Sizzling Desert and ask this pool who is the most beautiful creature in all Etheria."

Without another word, Catra and Clawdeen began their long and treacherous journey into the barren midst of the Sizzling Desert looking for the Pool of Beauty.
After much searching, they finally spotted its waters in the distance.
They rushed to its side and Catra peered into it.

Illustrations by Beverly Girdy

"Tell me, Pool of Beauty, who is the most beautiful creature in all of Etheria? Is it Catra?"

In a soothing voice, the pool answered, "Some may think Catra is the most beautiful creature in Etheria, but to my eyes, there is another far more beautiful than she."

Catra was shocked. "How could that be?" she howled. "I know I have the prettiest face, so it must be something else. Perhaps it is the clothes that make another more beautiful. It must be Frosta with her sparkling cape. I have admired that cape for a very long time. If I were to wear it, then I would certainly be the most beautiful creature in Etheria. Come, Clawdeen. I have a catastrophical plan. We must go to the Kingdom of Snows and steal Frosta's cape."

The two companions rode all day and into the night, until they reached the walls of Castle Chill. Cloaked in midnight's black shroud, Catra and Clawdeen stalked through Castle Chill in search of Frosta's cape. As silent as a cat, Catra entered Frosta's bedroom and discovered the cape hanging on the wall. She took the cape and threw it around her shoulders. Immediately, she felt a frosty chill race through her body.

This is no job for a girl," Catra whispered to Cowlee. "If we're to find Entrapta, we must begin at the place she last was. But no matter. Catra and Cowlee shall not be returned to the Pool of Beauty and receive our just rewards."

The next morning when Entrapta awoke she discovered that her cape was missing. She called her two friends, Adora and Angella, hoping that they might help her solve the mystery.

"I don't understand. The cape was here when I went to sleep. I remember wrapping it around me," she told her friends. "What could have happened to it? It was the only thing that kept me warm. Without it, I'll be very cold. She may be in grave danger unless we find her!"

Adora had no idea. Angella was not much help, either, but she did tell Entrapta where she could find her cape. "I'm sure you have already guessed that Catra has taken it. Where she flees, you have a chance of finding the cape. I will use my special sense to discover it and where she flees," Angella assured her friend.

Once Entrapta was gone, Angella closed her eyes and began to concentrate. At first the image was not very clear. Angella concentrated harder. Finally, she began to see the whole scene.

Catra wears the cape," Angella exclaimed. "She is racing through the Sizzling Desert with Cowlee in her hooves very fast. My intuition tells me that she is racing to the Pool of Beauty. If someone doesn't warn her about the cape very soon, she will be in serious trouble."

Entrapta was very concerned. "But the Sizzling Desert is on the other side of Etheria. Who can possibly get to the Quivering Sands quickly enough to warn Catra?"

Adora knew of someone who could help. "Let me take you to Mystic Mountain. Castle Cleo and wait for me. While I'm gone, I'll be the most mysterious cape."

Once inside, Adora whistled to her horse, Spirit. "Come, Spirit. We have work to do." Then Adora raised her sword high above her head and shouted, "For the honor of Grayskull—I AM SHE-RA!"

Instantly, the most powerful woman in the universe, and Spirit became Swift Wind, the winged unicorn.

She-Ra mounted her magnificent steed and shouted, "Fly, my Swift Wind! Ride the hooves over the Quivering Sands to the Pool of Beauty. We must warn Catra!"

With one tremendous leap, Swift Wind was right in the clouds together. She-Ra and Swift Wind rushed to Catra's aid.

In the meantime, Catra and Cowlee had returned to the Pool of Beauty. Even in the scorching heat of the Sizzling Desert, Catra was overjoyed because of the cape. She said, "This cape seems to be made of solid love. I am already starting to feel warm. But no matter. Now I will be able to remain beautiful forever. Let's get to Etheria."

Catra looked into the still waters of the pool and said, "Oh, Pool of Beauty, who is the most beautiful creature in all of Etheria but Catra?"

Once again, the watching water remained deep within the well spoke. "Some may think Catra is the most beautiful creature in Etheria, but to my eyes, there is another far more beautiful than she."

Catra was enraged. "How can this be?" she shouted through her chattering teeth. "Who can be more pretty here than the most beautiful woman wearing the most beautiful clothing?"

The pool answered, "My eyes can see where eyes cannot. Your eyes can see what is outside. Your clothes are beautiful. Yet they are but the beauty within the soul. My eyes see this beauty. To my eyes, there is another more beautiful than Catra."

"Why, you tasteless little puddle," Catra shouted. In her anger, Catra slipped and fell into the water. As soon as Entrapta's cape touched the cold water, the pool began to freeze around Catra. Within seconds, the entire pool was frozen. Only Catra's head remained above the solid water.

"Oh, no! Clawdeen! Find someone to help me before it's too late!" Catra shouted.

As Catra shouted for help, the clouds high overhead began to part. Suddenly, She-Ra appeared on Swift Wind. They landed beside the pool.

"We have to act fast," She-Ra said. The beautiful Princess of Power took her shiny gold shield and held it up to the sun so that the sun's rays reflected on it. She directed the scorching sun onto the pool with her shield. Slowly, the ice began to melt as the sun's magnified heat. Soon, the ice was gone and Catra was free.

"Catra," She-Ra shouted, "Remove the cape and throw it out of the pool. That is what is freezing the water and freezing you!"

Catra followed She-Ra's direction as quickly as possible. Soon the cape lay safely beside the pool. She-Ra put her shield back to her side as Catra climbed out of the Pool of Beauty.

"She-Ra, you saved me from that evil pool," Catra said. "I always thought Frosta had the most beautiful clothes in all of Etheria. I thought that if I wore her clothes, the pool would tell me that I was the most beautiful."

She-Ra picked up Frosta's cape, folded it carefully and placed it safely inside Swift Wind's pouch. Then she turned to Catra. "It's nice to admire the beauty of others. It is another thing altogether to envy their beauty. When you envy another's beauty, you make yourself see ugly. Be thankful for how beautiful you are, Catra."

But Catra didn't answer. "Come, Clawdeen. Let's get away from this miserable little puddle and go home." Then Catra and Clawdeen stormed off in a huff.

She-Ra sighed. "Come, Swift Wind, let's pay a visit to our good friend Frosta in the Kingdom of Snows. She'll be happy to know that her cape is safe and even happier to know that no one was hurt while wearing it." And with that, She-Ra and Swift Wind took off into the desert sky.

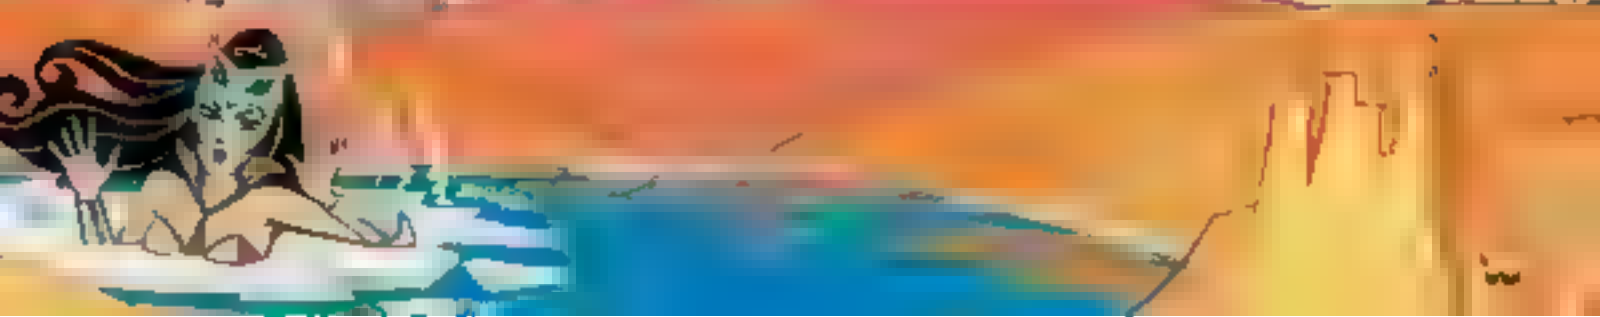
The Pool of Beauty watched Swift Wind carry She-Ra into the clouds, and started

The End

Hi! I'm Look-Kee! Did you see me in the story? I was hiding in the grass as Catra peered into the Pool of Beauty.

We can all learn from She-Ra's advice to Catra. Beauty is only skin deep. Those who are truly beautiful are good at heart! That's what the Pool of Beauty was saying all along.

See you later.



Fashion Fantasy

Be a fashion designer and create a costume for your favorite Princess of Power character. Think about what parts your fashion will need—a hat, a collar, a bodice, a skirt or pants, boots, a shield and a sword. Below are some ideas to help you get started.

Use a piece of thin paper and trace the figure of She-Ra. Then draw in the pieces that will make your fashion complete. You can use these ideas, or add your own designs.

Just for you!

Looking Over A Clover

Clover and shamrocks are symbols of St. Patrick's Day, celebrated on March 17. According to Irish legend, Saint Patrick used a shamrock to drive the snakes of Ireland into the sea. Shamrocks, and their plant relatives, clover, have been symbols of good luck ever since. Four-leafed clover are considered to be extra lucky, since they are hard to find. So if you find yourself looking over a four-leafed clover, remember . . . the luck of the Irish is with you!

Paws for Applause

It's hard to believe, but animal actors actually receive awards for their TV and movie performances just as human actors do. They're called the PATSY Awards (Performing Animal Top Star of the Year), and they're given every year by the American Humane Association. One of last year's winners was "Beau," a puppy who starred in NBC's "Highway to Heaven." This year's show will be filmed in early June, so watch for it to appear in your area!

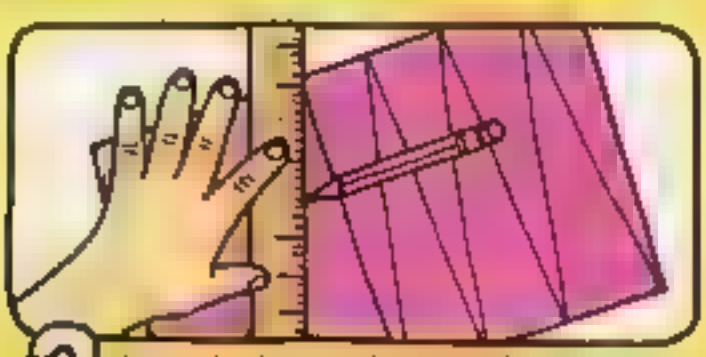
EGG-CITEMENT

The custom of dyeing eggs at Easter dates back to ancient times. Many countries around the world have developed unique egg-decorating traditions. Russian jeweled eggs are famous for their fantastic workmanship. Ukranian waxed eggs are known for their elaborate designs. You can develop your own style of egg decorating, too. Try experimenting with crayons, foil, colored paper, or bits of fabric and yarn. You might be surprised at how egg-citing your egg creations can be!

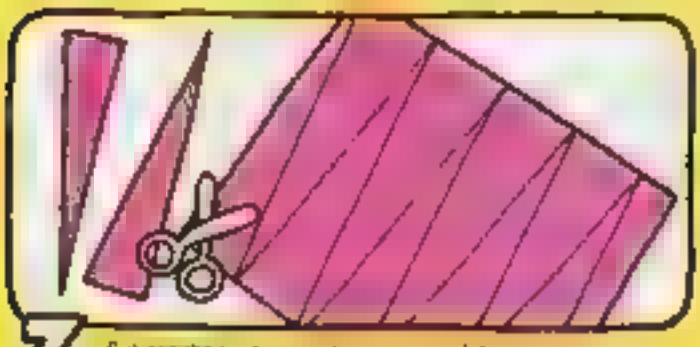
Just for Mom!

Moms are so special that they deserve their very own day—Mother's Day on May 11. Here's a great gift idea that's guaranteed to make all mothers smile. It's a necklace of paper beads that you can make yourself!

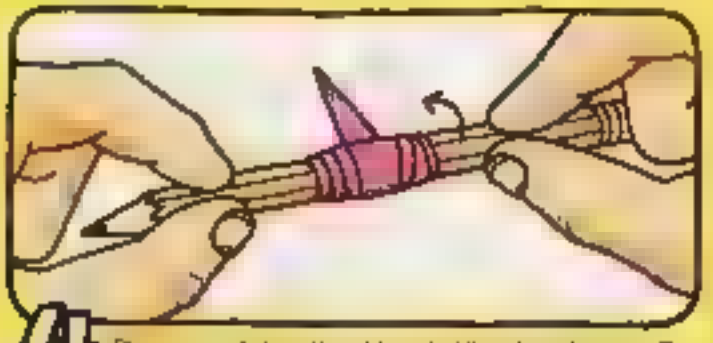
1 You will need: colorful paper, a pencil, a ruler, safety scissors, white string or yarn, white glue



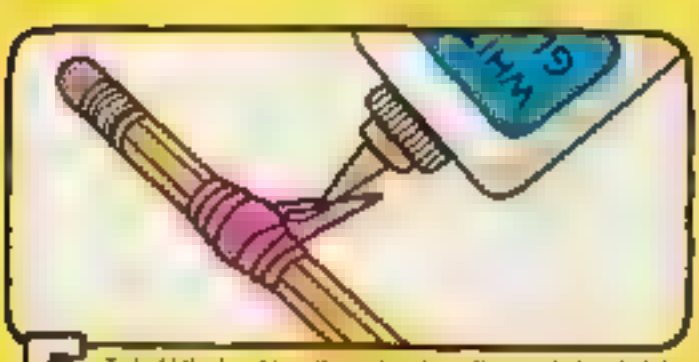
2 Using a ruler, draw pencil lines on colorful paper, dividing it into long, narrow triangular strips. (The wide end of the triangles should be about an inch long.)



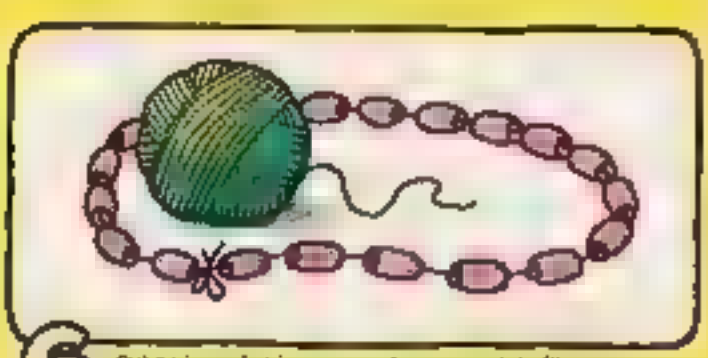
3 Cut out the triangular strips using safety scissors.



4 Place a pencil along the wide end of the triangular strip. Roll the paper around the pencil, making a bead.



5 To hold the bead together, glue down the pointed end of the triangle. Then slide the bead off the pencil. (Repeat this process for each bead you make.)



6 Cut a piece of string or yarn long enough to fit over an adult's head. Thread the beads on the string to make a necklace, then tie the ends of the string together so the beads don't fall off.

Did you find me hiding in the magazine? I'm on page 11, and I'm on page 17 behind Sheila's flowing shawl. Also, look for me in the middle of your Birthday Book.

SPRING

PRINCESS of POWER

You'll flip over our Spring Princess of Power—Phoebe Mills. She's 13 and is a member of the United States Gymnastics Team. Although Phoebe's family lives in Illinois, she moved to Houston, Texas, two years ago to train with Bela Karolyi. He's the famous coach who helped gymnast Mary Lou Retton win a gold medal in the 1984 Olympics.

Phoebe says that at first it was hard to live away from home. But she talks to her family every day and is very happy with her hectic life. She's in school all day and studies hard to keep up her "A" average. After school, Phoebe is off to the gym for 3 or 4 hours of practice.

Her favorite part of practice is working on the uneven bars. And the most difficult apparatus? Definitely the balance beam," Phoebe says.

Several times each year, Phoebe and the other girls from her gym go to gymnastics competitions. These events have taken them to a lot of exciting places, including Japan and France. And in a few years, Phoebe will be in Seoul, Korea, for the 1988 Olympics. That's a long way from the local gym where Phoebe began gymnastics when she was 5 or 6 years old. When she's not bouncing from school to the gym, Phoebe enjoys other sports. She holds records in speed skating, and also loves to swim.

Her dedication and hard work have already helped to place Phoebe sixth in the Junior Women's International Competition. She's sure to shine in the Olympics in 1988!

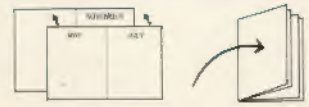
ASK AN ADULT TO HELP YOU ASSEMBLE YOUR BIRTHDAY BOOK.

1. Using safety scissors, cut out these instructions along the dotted lines. Put them aside so that you can follow along. You will now have two wide panels.

2. Pick up the top panel and fold it, back to back, down the middle. "July" should be in the upper right corner. Close the open edge with tape.
3. Pick up the bottom panel and fold it, back to back, down the middle. "November" should be in the upper right corner. Tape the open edges together to close them.



4. Pick up the top panel and lay it on top of the bottom panel. Fold the book in half so that the front cover is facing you. (Flip through the book to make sure the months are in order!)

5. Have an adult punch holes through the book as indicated on the back cover. String the book together with colorful yarn.

★ Now your Birthday Book is ready to use! Write in the birthdays of your friends and family. Remember them on their special days!

SHE-RA PRINCESS OF POWER

BIRTHDAY BOOK

This pretty book will help you remember
Whose birthday is in March or December.
Think of your family and friends—they're all great!
Under each month, write their name and birth date.
Birthdays are special in so many ways.
Remember your friends on their special days.
